

Request for Acknowledgment of CRS Funding

The Center for Regional Studies (CRS) promotes the quest for sources of knowledge about New Mexico, the USA - Mexico Borderlands, and the Americas. This multidisciplinary outreach center is designed to enhance the work of the University of New Mexico through graduate student fellowships, faculty research, program funding, visiting scholars, digital media and other projects. We facilitate the production, presentation, and distribution of books, articles, films, lectures, recordings and photo collections.

CRS requests that recipients of funding acknowledge the Center's role in supporting their scholarly work. Recipients are asked to expressly acknowledge CRS support in any resulting published or presented work (posters, theses, dissertations, conference papers, journal articles, book-related projects, etc.) and, to the extent possible, any publicity resulting from successful research funding. Poster displays and other visual presentations should include the CRS logo.

Acknowledgment allows CRS to demonstrate to potential donors the valuable work of the Center and its award recipients. This will help insure that CRS is able to continue to secure funding for important endeavors by UNM students, staff, and faculty in accordance with its mission. CRS also advances the University of New Mexico's mission of developing a global perspective through a variety of academic and research opportunities as individuals work to generate and disseminate new and valuable sources of knowledge.
